

Older local-clone burden persists after fixing tissue representation in the same mice. A-C use mice with thymus, spleen and marrow; D uses all supported mice per tissue. Shared clones indicate observed distribution across tissues, not migration. Only two young mice support the balanced comparison; subtype and reconstruction selection remain alternatives.